Monday, November 28th, 1743. [Numb. 505]

Copy of the Treaty between the Kings of Great-Britain and Prussia, concluded on the 18th of November, 1742. As it has not yet been published in this Paper, I hope (in the present Scarcity of News) it will not be disagreeable to my Readers.

BE it known unto all to whom it may appertain, that the most serene and puissant Prince and Lord George the III. King of Great-Britain, &c. of the one Part, and the most serene and puissant Prince and Lord Frederick King of Prussia, of the other Part, having maturely reflected upon the dangerous Situation of the State of Europe, and upon the Consequences which may result therefrom unto them, their Kingdoms, &c. animated with the same ardent Desire to establish and strengthen their antient Amity, Alliance and Confidence, to the End that they may be able more effectually to preserve and defend themselves and the Protestant Cause, and to act at all Times, and in all Cases, with the same Views and upon the same Interest: The said Lords the Kings have authorized their Ministers Plenipotentiary to settle together, by this present Treaty defensive, the Conditions of so salutary an Union, to wit, in the Name and on the Part of his Britannick Majesty, his Privy Counsellors Philip Lord Hardwick, &c. Thomas Holles Duke of Newcastle, Spencer Earl of Wilmington, &c. and John Lord Carteret, &c. and in the Name and on the Part of his Majesty of Prussia, the Sieur Jean Henry Andrie, his Counsellor, and Minister at the Court of his Britannick Majesty, who after a reciprocal Communication of their full Powers to each other, have agreed upon the following Articles.

Article I. That there shall be for ever an Amity firm and unalterable, an Alliance defensive, a strict and inviolable Union and perfect intimate Correspondence and Harmony between the said most serene Kings and their Heirs and Successors, their Kingdoms, Estates, Countries, Provinces, Territories and Subjects respectively, which shall be maintained and cultivated in such a Manner that the contracting Powers shall be constantly watchful over the publick Safety and Tranquillity, faithfully procuring their reciprocal Advantages and Utilities, and mutually guarantying their holy Religion from all Danger, Loss, Wrong and Damages, by all Means that are just, proper, and effectual in all those States and Countries where the Conservation of the Protestant Religion have, in Times past, been guaranty'd by the High contracting Parties.

II. And as the immediate Object and true Aim of this Union and Alliance defensive and perpetual between the said Lords the Kings is to maintain, defend and preserve reciprocally, in all Times of Trouble, as well present as future, the Peace, Tranquillity and Security of their Kingdoms, States, Countries, &c. conformably to the Treaties of Peace and Alliance that subsist between the high contracting Parties, it is expedient and agreeable that the said Treaties, as far as they relate to the respective Interests and Securities of the aforesaid contracting Powers, or either of them, and which have not been abrogated by their own Content, shall continue in as full Force and Vigour as if they were recited in this present Treaty; and moreover the most serene King of Great-Britain, by this present Treaty defensive, doth guaranty, in the best Manner he is able, to the most serene King of Prussia, his Kingdoms, Estates, Countries, &c. confirming once again, in the most express Manner, the Act of the 24th of June last agreed with the said most serene King of Prussia, touching the Guaranty of the most exact and constant Observation of the preliminary Articles of Peace concluded at Breslau the 11th of the said Month of June, between his said Prussian Majesty and the most serene Queen of Hungary and Bohemia, his said Britannick Majesty, by these Presents, also guarantying the the whole Contents of the last Treaty of Peace concluded at Breslin the 28th of July, N. S. of this present Year, between her said Majesty of the one Part, and the most serene King of Prussia of the other Part.

III. The most serene King of Prussia doth also reciprocally guaranty, in the best Manner he is able, unto the most serene King of Great-Britain, his Kingdoms, Estates, Provinces, Lands, Possessions and Subj^{ts} situated in Europe.

IV. In Case one of the said Lords the Kings shall happen to be hostily attacked or invaded by any Prince or Estate, and under any Pretext whatsoever, the other contracting Party shall without Delay, interpose his best Offices with the Aggressor, in order to procure Satisfaction to the Party injured, and to engage the Aggressor to abstain from farther Hostilities.

V. And if, within the Space of Two Months, such good Offices shall not have the desired Effect to procure Peace for the said offended Ally, together with just Satisfaction and Damages, that then such of the high contracting Parties, who shall be required by him that is attacked, shall be obliged to furnish, at his own Expence, the Succours hereafter specified, to wit, the King of Great-Britain 8000 Foot and 2000 Horse, and the King of Prussia, 2000 Horse and 8000 Infantry, it being understood that if the injured Party shall so Land Forces prefer Succours by Sea, or Money, he shall have his Choice; and, to prevent Disputes touching the Proportion in such Case, it is agreed that 1000 Foot shall be valued at 10,000, and 1000 Horse at 30,000 Florins * per Month, Dutch Money, accounting Twelve Months to the Year, and Succours by Sea shall be valued according to the same Proportion.

VI. And in Case the said Succours shall not be sufficient, the said Lords the Kings shall forthwith agree to furnish greater Succours, according to the same Proportion, and also, in Case it be requisite, shall declare War against the Aggressor, and mutually assist each other with all their Forces.

VII. The said most serene Kings shall invite such Princes and Estates as shall be agreed upon, to accede to this present Alliance and Treaty definitive; and it is in the mean Time at present agreed to invite, by Name the Lords the States General of the United Provinces.

VIII. This present Treaty shall be ratified by his Majesty the King of Great-Britain, and his Majesty the King of Prussia, and Letters of Ratification, in due Time, shall be exchanged between them within one Month, or sooner if possible, from the Day of signing the Treaty.

In Testimony whereof, we the undersigned Plenipotentiaries of the Kings of Great-Britain and Prussia have, in their Names, signed this present Treaty, and affixed our Seals thereto.
